Minimizing maintenance, maximizing beauty in Rye

Dorothy Ann Bloom had a vision for an old dilapidated bungalow on 750 Long John road in Rye. As a real estate Broker, she's shown and sold many properties, been involved in several new construction projects and knew this house had potential.

But the house also had many issues to be dealt with, so many that she decided to tear down the majority of the existing home and build a new open concept home with many of the upgrades one would expect of a home in Rye, such as hardwood and tile floors, custom cabinets and granite countertops.

After receiving approval from the town for a major teardown and new construction Dorothy's contractor, Bill Baker of W.E.B. Construction, Peterborough, NH began the process of gutting what remained of the 1997 addition to the home and creating a beautiful open and airy space with over 2,300 square feet of living area. "Bill is a very talented, reliable and dedicated builder. Add to this the quality services of Berry and Jones Plumbing and Heating, Will-Do Drywall, and Towle Painters and the results are exceptional."

Dorothy started looking for a local vendor for her product purchases for the job. She had never worked with Rand Lumber before, and didn't even know the mill existed behind our retail space.

Working closely with the whole crew at Rand, Dorothy purchased much of her wood products from us. While service was Dorothy's primary concern, she also wanted to be certain she was getting good value for her dollars spent on this large project. She shopped around for prices on many of the larger purchases and found our prices to be lower than many of the other retailers in the area.

The new low-maintenance, easy-install railing system is one of the many Rand products featured in this major remodeling project.

Rand provided the new stairway system for Dorothy's newly-designed spacious interior.

Rand provided all the spruce framing for the greatly changed home. We also provided all interior doors, custom extra-wide mouldings and casings, Camberra decking and low-maintenance exterior trim from Azek.

In the beginning not too many people were able to share that vision with Dorothy but now they are overwhelmed with how beautiful the home has turned out. Thanks to the efforts of Rand Lumber the vision has become a reality. "Good Value, Good Service and Good Products" is how Dorothy describes Rand Lumber.

Some of the products available through Rand Lumber used for Dorothy Bloom's project include:
