Summer Camp Expansion

The setting for Camp Yavneh can't be beat—pristine acreage bordering on Lucas Pond in Northwood, NH. It will be home soon to summer campers from around the region.

The campers will appreciate the result of this particular renovation. The dining hall is being expanded an additional 2,200 square feet.

At the helm of the renovation project is a local builder, Steve Cruikshank. The architect is Michael Greene of Deerfield, NH. The result is an exceptionally clean and efficient space that will serve its inhabitants well.

Steve has a long history with

Camp Yavneh. He has done several renovations over the years. His handiwork is impressive. The camp retains a wonderfully nostalgic feel of exactly how a summer camp should service. "You can count on them," Steve says. "They delivered exactly what I needed when I needed it and they always have." He also expressed a desire to work with a smaller family-owned business rather than the larger-chain conglomerates. "The pricing is always competitive, too," he added.

For a project of this size, the delivery from Rand included: 42 windows, 2 x 4s and 2 x 12s for framing, laminate beams, plywood for flooring, rafter systems, and all roofing materials.

The finished space will provide room for 150 more diners. The number of windows installed creates an incredibly bright and attractive space. The handsome pitched roofs make for an eye-pleasing exterior. Naturally, it is built to code and includes all of the necessary upgrades, including a nicely finished wheelchair accessible ramp.

This lucky customer has one talented builder in their camp.

be, with some modern touches that blend in well with its rich ancestry. One of the two oldest buildings in Northwood sits on the grounds of this camp.

A project like this starts long before summer, in the cold winter months. The foundation footings were poured in mid-January and the construction has continued since. It is a combination conventional wood-frame and steel-frame construction. The last step is an epoxy flooring to be poured shortly.

Steve grew up in Rye, NH, home to Rand Lumber Company, so he is quite familiar with their products and
